Not illustrated. 1915 Excerpt: ...should not be refused to any people. That the governments of all nations should come to an agreement to refer future international disputes to arbitration or conciliation and to bring social, moral, and economic pressure to bear upon any country which resorts to arms. That foreign politics should be subject to democratic control. That women should be granted equal political rights with men. 4. Continuous Mediation. This International Congress of Women resolves to ask the neutral countries to take Immediate steps to create a conference of neutral nations which shall, without delay, offer continuous mediation. The Congress shall invite suggestions for settlement from each of the belligerent nations and in any case shall submit to all of them simultaneously reasonable proposals as a basis of peace. III. Principles of a Permanent Peace. (Elaborated from 11-3.) IV. International Co-operation. 10. Third Hague Conference. This International Congress of Women urges that a third Hague Conference be convened Immediately after the war. 11. International Organization. This International Womens Congress urges that the organization of the Society of Nations should he further developed on the basis of a constructive peace, and that it should include: a. As a development of the Hague Court of Arbitration, a permanent International Court of Justice to settle questions or differences of a justiciable character, such as arise on the interpretation of treaty rights or of the law of nations. 6. As a development of the constructive work of the Hague Conference, a permanent International Conference holding regular meetings in which women should take part, to deal not with the rules of warfare, but with practical proposals for further international co-operation among the States....
